Carlibourg, in Transylvania, Dec. 9. The tranquillity in these parts is far from being re-established; nor has the proclamation issued by Government, on the 18th of November, at all terrified the rebels. On the contrary, their number feems daily to increase, and they have only retired into mountains that are inaccessible, and to the villages near them, where they find refuge, sublistence, and even partisans. They not only murder the nobility who oppose them, but also all the military. In the environs of Offenhayn, they reduced a detachment of twenty foldiers to fuch straits, that Lieutenant Meschterhazy hastening to their affiltance with ten men, was furrounded hy them on his march, and killed with eight of his party. Lieutenant Schultz was likewife fo completely furrounded by them in the mountains near Thorckzo, that he was obliged to make his way through them, fword in hand, with the lofs of eleven of his huffars.

We just now learn, that Major Stranich, after retreating, in order to receive some reinforcements, has attacked the rebels so vigorously, that he has forced five thousand of them to lay down their arms, on condition of being included in the general pardon. This number, however, appears to be rather exaggerated, and there is shill a body of nine thousand rebels in the environs of Thorda and Thorczko.

Extract of a letter from Dr Jeffries, dated Calais, Jan. 8.

" Heaven has crowned my utmost wishes with success. I cannot describe to you the magnificence and beauty of our When about mid channel, and at a high elevation, we had fuch a profpect of the country, as surpasses my de-leriptive faculties; when two thirds over, we had expended the whole of our ballast. At about five or fix miles from the French coaft, we were again falling rapidly towards the lea; on which occasion my noble little Captain gave orders, and fet the example, by beginning to ftrip our aerial car, fift of our filk and finery; this not giving us fufficient release, we cast out one wing, then the other, after which I was obliged to unferue and cast away our moulinet; yet still approaching the search of the providing the search unwillingly, cast away first one anchor, then the other, after which my little hero stript, and threw away his coat (great which my little hero stript, and threw away his coat (great coat). On this I was compelled to follow his example. Then he stript, and cast away his trouvers. We put on our cork jackets, and were, God knows how, but as merry as cork jackets, and were, God knows how, but were the stript of the water. We had grigs, to think how we should splutter in the water. a fixed cord, &c. to mount into our upper storey, and I believe both of us, as though inspired, felt ourselves confident of succofs in the worst. Luckily, at this inflant, we found the mercury beginning to fall in the barometer, and we foon afcended much higher than ever before, and made a most beautiful entree into France, exactly at three o'clock. We entered rifing, and to such a height, that the arch we deferibed brought us down just twelve miles into the country, when we descended most tranquilly into the midst of the forest De Felmores, almost as naked as the trees, not an inch of cord or rope left, no a chor, or any thing else to help us, nor a being within several miles. My good little Captain begged for all my exertion to stop at the rop of the first tree I could I fucceeded beyond my comprehension, and you would have laughed to fee us, each without a coat of any fort. Mr Blanchard affifting at the valve, and I holding the top of a lofty tree, and the balloon playing to and fro over us, holding almost too fewere a contest for my arms. It took exactly twenty-eight minutes to let out air enough to relieve the balloon without injury. We foon heard the wood furrounded by footmen, horfemen, &c. and received every politic affiliance from Sandrouin, where we received every polite attention, and were led through a noble fuite of apartments to partake of an elegant refreshment, &c. and at nine o'clock fent away in an elegant chariot and fix horfes, but under a promife that we would call at the chateau of Mr Brounot, at Ardingham, where we staid about an hour, and then fet off again as before towards Calais, where we arrived between one and two o'clock this morning. I was surprised to find the difficulties of access; five very strong gates, bridges, &c. the guards very vigilant, but had all orders to let us pass, the Commandant having fat up for us. We visited him, and were very politely received; but the attentions of Mr Mouron and his family exceeded all description. This morning the Mayor, Governor, Commandant, the Officers in a body, the King's Attorney-General, &c. have been to pay us a congratulatory vifit, and we have been complimented, as they compliment the King alone, by fending us the wine of the city. A patent is now making out to make my Captain a citizen of Calais. We are receiving honours and attentions much above our merit."

To the above account we have authority to add, that the Corporation of Calais have come to a refolution of erecting a monument to perpetuate the memory of the two intrepid aero-creation. The following extraordinary account came to the Printingoffice anonymoufly:—Yesterday I was present at one of the most valiant or murdering duels that history contains. Captain

R. an officer of the Guards, having advanced some disagreeable reflections on the Artillery Company, Mr S. a member, referted it with such spirit, that from my information from of the seconds, no time was lost in appoliting time and place; the back of Montagu-nood was fixed on and agreed by both parties. After the usual seremony, Captain R. fired his pistol in the air; Mr S. returned, and shot him in the arm; Captain R. fired and wounded Mr S. in the leg; the seconds interfered, but to no purpole, for they were determined to conquer or die. The ground was changed two paces nearer; Mr S. fired and fhot Captain R. in the breaft, but as he was falling into his feconds arms, he fired, and the ball entered his antagonist's groin, which brought him to the ground, and no hopes of the recovery of either. As the Parliament is on the verge of meeting, I hope Sir Richard Hill, or fome worthy member, will make a motion to prevent duelling, alias murder. Morn. Chron.

Extract of a letter from London, Jan. 13. days path, to attend to public business, still continues so ill as to occasion the Cabinet Council to be farther postponed, that has been summoned to ment on the Speech to be delivered at the meeting of a certain area of the meeting of a certain area of the council to those members that are known to be in the interest of the Administration of the Adm ministration, requiring their attendance in town against the meeting of Parliament, and very unufual pains are taking by Ministry, both collectively and individually, to bring all their friends together on the occasion.

" Several meetings have lately been held of the friends of Lord North, and Mr Fox; and it is an undoubted fact, that from their number, weight, and respectability, there is no queftion they will prove themselves as formidable to the administration the enfuing fession, as they were found throughout the

There is no foundation whatever for the report of the Earl of Guil ford being so dangerously ill, as to give reason to think, that Lord North will appear the ensuing session of Parliament in the House of Lords. The Ministry, indeed, would be glad of an event that would detach the noble Lord, from Mr Fox and his friends, in the lower house; but there is not, at prefent, any reason to think that it will be the case.

"The ensuing sessions of Parliament bids fair to give the people that Parliamentary Reform they have so long wished for. The leaders of the Quintuple Alliance, a numerous, and respectable body of people, formed of the principal inhabitants of the city of London, the city of Wellminster, the county of Middlefex, the county of Surry, and the borough of Southwark, and who originally met together for the fole and avowed purpose of procuring a Parliamentary Reform, are taking every step in their power to give aid to the endeavours of their friends in the House of Commons. The delegates, consisting of four members from each branch of the alliance, have already had a meeting; and a general convention of the whole body is furm-moned to be held at the Paul's Head Tavern, in order to concert fuch measures as may be in their power for expressing the sense of the people for a Parliamontary Reform, and bringing about that most desireable measure.—The Duke of Richmond is expected to take the chair."

"A new carriage is preparing at an eminent coachmaker's,

"It is considertly said, that a Royal message will be sent to the Honse of Commons the ensuing session, recommending an increase of the allowance granted to their Royal Highnesses the Dukes of Gloucester and Cumberland.

"Though there is, at present, no reason to imagine, that his Prussian Majesty will take an active part in the war that may break out between the Emperor of Germany and the States of Holland, authentic letters advise, that his Majesty is very attentive to the affairs of their High Mightineffes ; and that feveral detachments of huffars, and other light troops, were put in motion, in order to have an eye on what paffes; and that it is also said, that Prince Henry will have the command of an army of observation of considerable force.

They write from Newcastle, that, on Tuesday se'ennight, they had a violent rain, which continued some time, attended with a strong wind from the West; and accounts from various parts describe it as the most severe storm of any that has been this winter. It was a heavy rain in Whitehaven and Hex-ham, and at a few miles distance of each of those places there was a great fall of fnow. At Kefwick, the rain came down in fuch abundance, that the water entered almost every house in the town, while, at a very little distance, several of the road the town, while, at a very little distance, several of the roads, which had been perfectly open, were, in places, entirely blocked up by the snow; and a tradesman of Allandale town, on his return home from Hexham market, not being able to get through the snow, after struggling till he was overcome with satigue, laid himself down, and died. The snow is 40 feet deep upon the road up to Black-Hambleton, at Sutton-under-Whitestone-cliffe. Sunday afternoon the ice on the Tyne began to give way at Corbridge; and, on Monday, it broke up, and came down, on that and the fucceeding day, in large bodies, fo that the river is now completely open.

Mr Colquhoun not reputly complying with his demand, the robber fired his pistel as him, which happily only staffed in the pan; upon another pistel being presented, he was obliged to deliver his watch, and what money he On Colquhoun's return to Kilmarnock, some people from Dunlop came there who faid the description given of the robber. A party of peace-officers was fent to appre-hend him, but he got information of their coming, and made his escape. In the hurry to get off, he left his horse, great coat, and a pocket-book, in which were some bills of value, which, it is supposed, he had taken from some other people. It is conjectured this is the fame fellow that robbed the men in Irvine Muir, mentioned in our last.

" On Wednesday the 12th curt. a very melancholy accident happened in the neighbourhood of this place, about a quarter of a mile from the Westport. Betwixt seven and eight o'clock at night, a house was discovered to be on fire, which was confumed in a very floor space, and, notwithstanding every endeavors, could neither be got under, nor prevented from communicating to a house and byre adjoining, which were also confumed. By this four families have lost their all in furniture, &c. and a woman and two children perished in the flames. She was milking a cow in the byre, and her husband being out, had left four children in the house, two of whom She had not been long out, when the bed in dren were caught fire. "A remonstrance, we hear, has just been transmitted from our Privy Council to his Majesty's Ministers in London, against certain expressions or declarations in the heads of the the trith Administration, to weaken the hands of Government.

An answer to this remonstrance is expected here in the beginning of the next week.

To the Printer of the Caledonian Mercury:

WHILE our City Rulers have, for some years past, exercised a laudable zeal for projecting and carrying into execution a variety of schemes for beautifying and rendering execution a variety of schemes for beautifying and rendering the city more commodious, it must appear truly attentifing to every beholder, that they should have given their consent to the projection of the smoky conductor lately fixed at the bottom of the great east window in the High Church. However comfortable the store, with which it is connected, may render a few of the congregation within, the conductor of its smoke must prove not only offensive to all who are without, when passing by in their way to the other churches, but equally different below to the samilies who live in the neighbourhood.

I cannot help, Sir, being of opinion, that shole, whole state of health is such as to stand in need of the assistance of a store while attending (for an hour and an half only) public worship, of health is such as to stand in need of the abilitance of a stove while attending (for an hour and an half only) public worship, would be much better employed in devotional exercise at home. Setting afide the external deformity of the object of which I now complain, and which, through the week, presents itself daily to the eye of every person passing to or from our courts of law, it argues want of take in the projector, and points out, in striking colours, our essential the projector, and the high degree of Inxury to which we are arrived.

Newburgh in Fife, 13th January 1785.

A T a parochial Meeting of the Heritors, Elders, and whole lumbhants of the Royal Burgh of Newburgh, and landward parith thereof, legelly intimated from the lattern on Sabbath the 26th December laft, colivened, the Magiltrates and Town Conneil of the faid burgh, almost all the Heritors that Elders, and the greatest part of the heads of families and residenters in the faid burgh and parith, who made choice of James Cutheast, Esq. of Cartifoon as their Prefes.

There was laid before the Meeting a letter from the New Committee at Glasgow, and also the resolutions of the General Sessions of Edinburgh, with a letter from the Edinburgh Committee, all relative to the law of Patronage; which being read over, and fully confidered and reasoned on by the Meeting, they came to the following Resolutions unanimously.

Though this Meeting highly applauds the exertions, travel and pains, of the New Committee in Glasgow, in such a pains worthy undertaking, yet as there is every reason to believe, that the landed interest would oppose popular elections, and there is no prospect of success in that way, therefore this Meeting cordially adopts the plan and resolutions of the General Sessions of Edinburgh.

That as the friends of Patronage trust greatly that the people in Scotland to be aware of this; and heartly join with the plan of the Edinburgh General Sessions.

Scotland to be aware of this; and heartily join with the plan of the E-dinburgh General Scisions.

That a Minister, torced in series a parish against the minds of the people, is limitful to true religion, as well as to the temporal interests of society; as he never can be of this infessions in his public or private capacity, as if he had come in by the choice of the parish.

That the law of Patronage is well known to be a relic of Popery, and has greatly disturbed the Reformed Church of Scotland, ever since that law began to be exercised. It has occasioned great divisions and feershoons from the Church, and in some nacture has allemated the uninds of many from the Government of the State, as being contrary to King William's act 1600, as well as to the acts of the Union—which were all founded on Revolution principles.

as well as to the acts of the Union—which were all founded on accessments principles.

That this parish in particular, preferrely feels the rod of patronage in a singular manner, as they are not only threatened with having a presenter thrust in upon them who is whethy disagreeable to the parish, but this too by a gentleman as pretended patron, who has no right to the patronage of the parish, as in the last contested settlement of this parish, was found by the same Presbytery, a majority of which is now supporting this usurped right of patronage, even although the parish has offered to bear the expense of declaring before the proper court, the Presbytery's just devolutum. If such a violent and unjust settlement should take place, it must drive from the chuch this populous parish of more than two thousing persons, and add one more to the number of differning meeting houlds, already a heavy burden on the public both in burgh and landward.

houles, already a heavy burdencen the public both in burgh and landward.

For these and other obvious reasons, this meeting warmly approves of, and concurs with the resolutions of the General Sessions of Edinburgh, to apply to Parliament for a restoration of the act 1690. They have now collected for, and will freely contribute their share of that expence, and of every other constitutional measure for obtaining redress of this gievance, to long and so justly complained of.—The meeting appoints their minutes to be published in all the Edinburgh newssays, who was chosen clerk to this meeting.
